THE TRIBUNE. Gen. Jackson for Protestion.

In 1824, Gen. Jackson, then a member U. S. Senate, before which a Protective Tariff bill was pending, wrote as follows to Dr. Coleman o North Carolina :

" So far as the Tariff before as embraces the de sign of fostering and preserving within ourselves the means of national defence and independence, and support it. Providence has filled our mountains and plains with minerals—with lead, iron and given us climate and soil for the of hemp and wool. Those being the rers may be placed on a fair competition with those of Europe, and that we may have within our stry a supply of those leading and important acticles so essential in war. Beyond this I look at f labor and recenue; and with a view to the real situation of the agriculturist ? Where has the American farmer a market for his surplus reign nor a home market. Does not this clearly then there is no market either at home or broad, that there is too much labor employed Common sense points out at once bundant labor-employ it in mechanism and manofactures, thereby erecting a home market for d-stuffs, and distributing labor to the most profitable amounts, and benefits for the commy will result. In short, sir, we have been too long subject to the policy of British merchants. It is time we should become a little more American

This reminds us of the Aldermen -the filthy fellows-who keep slaughter-house and the streets most poisonously un of hogs-you'll find enough-ride them the town. If they are not then convinced they ought to be kicked for past stupidity why then exercise your ingentity to devise som appropriate disposition of them. It's too much trouble for us.
